

Maybe it's because Summer temperatures in the SF Bay Area never really climb too high, but I have never been a shorty shorts gal. I like big shorts, and I have been sporting two different styles this season that are comfy and cool, even though they cover my thighs.

* Moving Comfort Fusion Bermuda ($42)

Made of a lightweight DriLayer fabric, these shorts will wick the sweat away. The material is soft, comfy, and stretchy. These shorts hit just above the knee without clinging uncomfortably to the flesh above the joint — no rolls of flesh coming out of from under tight elastic. The Fusion Bermuda comes in all black or in Aubergine with contrasting piping (so happy to have an option other than black!) and has an internal pocket for cash or your ID. The cut is flattering and fun to wear.
